Crestwood officials cut corners and supplied residents with tainted water for 2 decades

By Michael Goodwin
Staff Writer

Louisiana residents in Crestwood, La., have been drinking tainted water for two decades, according to a report released by the state's attorney general. The report, which was filed in December, says that the water was contaminated with lead and other harmful substances. The report also says that the water was not tested regularly enough to catch the problem. The report was filed after a lawsuit was filed by a group of residents who claimed that the water was causing health problems. Trump puts stiff tariffs on Canada, Mexico and China

Escalating tensions raise fears of higher commodity costs

By Andrew Ross
Staff Writer

President Donald Trump's decision to impose 25 percent tariffs on steel and 10 percent tariffs on aluminum from Canada, Mexico and China, has raised concerns about the impact on the economy.

The tariffs are expected to raise the cost of steel and aluminum, which are used in a wide range of products, from cars to construction materials.

Some analysts predict that the tariffs will lead to higher prices for consumers and could hurt the economy. However, others believe that the tariffs will protect American jobs and industries.

The tariffs are part of a broader trade war between the United States and China, which has led to a series of retaliatory tariffs from China.

Super Bowl ad prices reach all-time high

Advertisers are paying record prices to get their messages during this year's big game

By Jeff Sparrow
Staff Writer

As the Super Bowl approaches, advertisers are paying record prices to get their messages during this year's big game. The average cost per spot has reached a new high, and some advertisers are paying as much as $5 million for a 30-second spot.

The high prices are due to the large audience of the Super Bowl, which is expected to reach over 100 million viewers. Advertisers are also paying more for spots during the game, as the audience is at its peak.
